

2023 APPE RISEsm Pre-Conference Symposium
Research Ethics and Integrity: Strategies for Engagement
Portland (Oregon) Marriott Downtown Waterfront: March 2

Call for Proposals

In recent years, the topic of engagement has received increased attention, highlighting the ways in which researchers, institutions, and the public interact with and understand one another. In this context, engagement involves applying concepts of integrity and ethics in research to the various challenges that affect interactions among different stakeholders. To discuss and explore some of these challenges, we invite scholars to submit presentation abstracts on the topics at the intersection between research ethics/integrity and engagement.

Topic areas of interest for this call include:

1. Researchers' role as agents of engagement
 - a. Researchers' responsibilities when conducting research in a community or environment
 - b. Engagement with or recruitment of various subjects
 - c. The intersection of engagement with topics such as RCR education, research oversight processes, open science, and graduate supervision
2. Institutions' role in promoting ethical engagement
 - a. The role of institutions in ethical translation of research into practice
 - b. Ethical stewardship and social responsibility of institutions
 - c. Institution's place and reputation among different communities; institutional outreach strategies; institutions' response to community feedback and engagement; influences on institutional ethical conduct
 - d. Modelling integrity and promoting an ethical culture
3. Responsible engagement with the public
 - a. Improving research communication and transparency as well as scientific literacy and citizen science initiatives
 - b. Strategies and tools for building public trust in research
 - c. Best practices for ethical research oversight, participation and engagement before, during and after the conduct of research

Submission categories: The 2023 APPE RISEsm Pre-Conference Symposium invites abstracts of up to 350 words, describing recent research or activities of interest to the research ethics/integrity community. Contributors can indicate their preference within the APPE submission portal for a traditional individual presentation (15 to 20 minutes) or a poster. The format for accepted submissions will be assigned by the organizing committee. If you would like for your proposal to be considered for a general session during the APPE in-person conference or the APPE virtual conference, you can note it under “Additional Information” during the submission process. Proposals will not be selected for multiple tracks.

Submissions should include the following information:

- Title
- All contributors with names and organizational affiliations
- Abstract including background, purpose, key findings, significance, and references (references not included in the word count)

Check one: oral presentation poster presentation

Important information

Please submit your abstract by October 3, 2022 on the Ex Ordo platform. You'll need to create a login ID and password if you haven't already. Your submission can be saved and finished at any time. Be sure to select “APPE RISE Pre-Conference” for your track.

For more information about APPE, its annual conference, and hotel and travel accommodations, refer to appeconference.org.